World's Largest Camper Makes Portland Debut At Portland Fall RV & Van Show

Portland, OR – When a traditional camper may be a bit small and a Class A motorhome is too large, there's Powerhouse Coach's Expedition, the world's largest production camper. Making its Portland, Oregon debut at the Portland Fall RV and Van Show, the Powerhouse Coach Expedition is worth checking out, if only to gawk, "ooh and ahh" and appreciate that big packages can hold some equally big opportunities.

The 300 square foot cab-over master bedroom is big enough to house a full-size king bed. The 17' long deck is an immediate clue that it takes a larger vehicle, like a large flatbed truck, to mount this. And one look into the cavernous interior confirms that this is truly a revolutionary, next step in campers.

The interior space is optimized by clever slide outs that give this unit the look of a full-size motorhome or trailer not a camper as advertised. Powerhouse Coach is a custom builder so it's up to you to determine which layout and features best suit your needs but it's safe to say the sky's the limit with a long list of features and options to select from.

The camper can either be removable or permanently mounted.

As a removable camper, Powerhouse Coach says the unit can be unloaded in five minutes so you're free to "have wheels to chase around in." For traveling boaters, ATV or dune rails, this configuration makes particularly good sense. The Powerhouse Coach Expedition gives you the "ability to tow a substantial boat or toy trailer" easily.

Make a point of stopping by the Portland Fall RV & Van Show to check out the Powerhouse Coach Expedition and hundreds of other RV's of all sizes and descriptions, September 13th – 16th, 2018 at the Portland Expo Center.
